WILL COME TO-DAY

Eleven That Will Meet on the Gridiron To-Morrow Reach Richmond To-Night.

THE BETTING WILL BE EVEN

Men on Both Sides in Fine Condition—The Probable Line-Up.

The great football teams of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the Agricultural and Mechanical College of North Carolina, the technological schools of the two states, will arrive in the city this afternoon or early this evening for their game at Broad Street Park on Thursday. Both teams will be accompanied by their substitutes, trainers, coaches and a large contingent of the student body of the two schools. It is understood, however, that the game will be played at the Richmond Hotel, and the lobby of that hotel will be given up to football talk for the evening. The gridiron warriors of the two schools will be the centre of admiring groups, and the evening will be spent in discussion of the great battle of the next day.

In Fine Condition.

The plans of both eleven are guarded with great secrecy, the precise line-up not being known, while all sorts of conjecture reports as to the average weights and the individual conditions of the men are in circulation. Those who follow the game are accustomed to this form of football strategy on the eve of the crucial games of the season. All that can be said now is that both eleven are in splendid condition and that they are very evenly matched in weight, in training and in knowledge of the game. Both have had the benefit of the very best instruction from coaches, and the physical condition of the players is excellent. The game will be a very close one, and it is practically certain that the betting will be even.

The V. P. I. eleven have had their hopes raised by the wonderful game put up by the Techs against the Naval Academy last Saturday, but the wise men of the game are of the opinion that the Virginia team will hardly be in condition to stand a long and grueling battle with a well-conditioned eleven trained to a fine point and with a long attendance from the cheering section. Many remember the game a few years ago between the Universities of Virginia and Carolina, when the Virginia team, which had played the Indians to a standstill the Saturday before, went all to pieces and were beaten, mainly because by the Carolina eleven. Conditions may be the relative factor in this case, and with two teams of edge, it is difficult to keep them so even. If the V. P. I. eleven does not show the effects of two hard games within a week, the Carolina eleven's game ends it will be striking demonstration of stamina and steady power.

Probable Line-Up.

From the best information obtainable the eleven will probably line-up in the order, the V. P. I. line being practically that in the Atlantic game.

A. AND M. PRACTICE WAS WELL ATTENDED

Will Bring a Large Crowd to the Thanksgiving Game Here.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
The A. and M. football team is making great preparation for the game to be played at Richmond Thanksgiving Day with the V. P. I. team. The team is doing some extra hard practice, and the coaches are leading every effort to have the players in the very best possible state of training. Great crowds are attending the practice games, and the highest degree of enthusiasm is being manifested in the great Thanksgiving contest.

Large crowd of Carolinians in Richmond for the game. Probably the largest crowd that ever went to Richmond for a Carolina game will accompany A. and M. from Raleigh on the special train that is to be operated from here. There will also be a special train from Durham bearing large numbers of Trinity College and University of North Carolina students.

The probable line-up of the A. and M. team for the Richmond game will be: Temple, center; Perkins, right guard; Eddler or Boche, right tackle; Stowd,

WILLIAM AND MARY
TO PLAY RICHMOND

Dr. Joel Whitaker is now coaching the team. Coach Heston having been released from his own request before the end of the season so that he might take part in a Thanksgiving game between the alumni of the University of Michigan and University of Chicago, he being on the Michigan team.

Dr. Whitaker says Wilson will be in the game, so far as the A. and M. management is concerned, but that, of course, the advisory board has the right to overrule this; but he does not think they will, as Wilson clearly has the right to be in the game.

The Cornell team is confident of victory, and the game will be a very close one.

Today's practice was given up almost entirely to signal drill. The signal drill will be taken to Norfolk, and the game will be a very close one. The Virginia team is confident of victory, and the game will be a very close one.

MADE IN RICHMOND

The Ancients Will Meet the Spiders at Newport News Thanksgiving Day.

HOPES TO RETRIEVE POSITION

If They Can Defeat the Champions They Will Be in Lead.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
WILLIAMSBURG, Va., November 27.—William and Mary College will play the closing game of the season Thursday with Richmond College in Newport News. This game, though not in the championship series, is by far the most important to the college of the season. William and Mary has been beaten by both Richmond and Randolph-Macon Colleges, but the team hopes to win back its place at the head of the league by defeating the winner of the championship series, Richmond College, Thanksgiving Day.

In betting, odds will probably be against William and Mary, but then few people outside of the college know of the real condition of the team. The team for the past three weeks has been under the efficient management of Coach Barry, of Norfolk. The Randolph-Macon game, with its score of 6 to 4, showed what one week's good coaching could do. Since then Barry has had nearly three weeks in which to strengthen the team, and its strength has increased wonderfully. The team and the students in general have set their hearts on victory, and practically the entire student body will go to Newport News to urge their team on to victory. Great enthusiasm prevails among all, and meetings are being held each night at which the college yell and songs are being practiced.

Aside from what the game really means to the college, it is the greatest athletic movement in the history of the college. Newport News, growing tired of Norfolk's drawing her crowds to her games, decided to have one of their own, and accordingly asked William and Mary to play there. To this Manager Hettin agreed and arranged for the coming game with Richmond College.

The college will be handsomely remunerated, and the people of the city are doing all in their power for the team. They have assured the college that practically the entire city will turn out to the game, and also a large party of alumni of the college from Norfolk.

They have been invited to occupy a box at the Academy of Music that night.

Thursday night a dance will be given in honor of the two teams.

BLACKSBURG SATISFIED.
Has No Criticism to Make of the Treatment Received at Annapolis.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
BLACKSBURG, Va., November 27.—In an interview here today the coach and manager of the Tech's football team stated that they have no criticism to make in any particular of the game played with the Navy at Annapolis last Saturday as to the result of the game, or officials, or treatment they received on the field. Each team had its best men in the field and played their game. The team is well content with the showing the Techs made, and will play the Navy next year.

INVASION DEFEATS THE FLEET OF A HIGHWOOD

Crawford's Crack Trotter Wins Three Brushes From Straus's Queen of Speedway.

NEW YORK, November 27.—Invader, 2:10, the trotter that swept everything before him in wagon races at the Empire track last summer, swept the Speedway Monday beating Nathan Straus's Ida Highwood, 2:10 1/2, the acknowledged mistress of the road in a series of brushes. Andrew Crawford drove the winner.

Porter's Promie, 2:10, also started, but he was slightly overmatched in the company of the champion. Not one of the three trials of speed was altogether satisfactory as a test of the merits of Invader and Ida Highwood, the erratic little mare breaking badly in two of them, while in the other both horses were interfered with by the track.

Swimmer along under a pull three lengths in front, Invader won the first heat easily. Ida Highwood and Promie, having put ground by breaks made in the first quarter, Mr. Straus's mare gave a much better account of herself in the second heat. She was trotting neck and neck with the big horse, and it looked like anybody's heat as they sped past the end of the stone wall one hundred yards from the finish. A little farther on, however, they overtook two slower trotters engaged in a heat, and both drivers had to suddenly shift the course of their horses to keep from going over the ones in front.
